SOCIETY IS COMING HOME

Season's Gayeties at Seaside and Summer Resort Are Over.

Admiral and Mrs. Roe Have Returned. Secretary Olney's Vacation Has Ended—Other Personal News.

Miss Dashiell, the accomplished young musician of this city, has returned from Erie, where she went recently to attend the marriage of her friend, Miss Jennie De Clout Rogers, formerly of Washington, to Mr. Edwin Seymour Whiteley. The ceremony took place August 21 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Erie, Pa.

Miss Dashiell presided at the organ throughout the ceremony, which was augmented by the presence of the full vocal choir, which sang "O, Perfect Love" as the bride party entered the church.

The bride leaned on the arm of her father, Hon. H. C. Rogers, ex-Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Miss Amy Kane, of this city, was the maid of honor. Schubert's "Serenade" was played during the betrothal service at the church steps.

A number of Washingtonians were present at the ceremony, having gone to Erie for that purpose.

Secretary Olney has returned to Washington from New England, where he has been spending the summer.

Assistant Secretary Hamlin since his return from Marion, Mass., has been staying at Chevy Chase, where he will remain until the return of his sisters from their summer home on the Massachusetts coast. Mr. Hamlin comes into the city every morning and returns to Chevy Chase in the afternoon, making the trips on his bicycle.

Mr. Franklin Tenney, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Chamberlain, left the city, a few days since, for a visit to Atlantic City. Before returning to Washington they will go to Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Outerbridge-Horsey and family have spent the season at Bedford Springs, where they went early in the summer on account of Mr. Horsey's health.

Mr. C. B. Smith has returned from a visit to Sorrento, Maine, where his wife has been spending the season at her summer home at that place. Mrs. Smith before returning to Washington will visit her daughter at Nyack-on-the-Hudson.

Mrs. Charles Everfield, who has been abroad for a year past, has decided to remain in Europe for another year before returning to Washington. This intelligence will be received with regret by her friends in this city.

Admiral and Mrs. Roe have returned to Washington after having spent the summer visiting a friend in the country near the city.

Miss Maud Elliott has returned from visiting friends at the Mackall farm, near Langley.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pollok, who have been abroad for the summer will soon return to this country.

Miss Jane Riggs, who has been abroad for several months just visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howard, is on the eve of returning.

HIS FINGERS CRUSHED.

Painful Results of Thomas Alvey's Going on a Spree.

Thomas Alvey, a plasterer, residing at No. 1133 Gough Avenue, southeast, had his left hand badly hurt on Fourth and a-half street, below Pennsylvania Avenue, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

Alvey, who was apparently under the influence of liquor, was walking up Fourth and a-half street. He reeled across the pavement, and to regain his equilibrium grabbed at a pile of iron wheels, heavy wheels and old iron. The nails fell, pinning the man's left hand between the heavy pieces of metal and crushing all the fingers. When the hand was extricated the bones of every finger protruded through the flesh, which was peeled from the hand.

The plasterer's cries attracted the policeman on the beat and Alvey was sent to the Emergency Hospital in No. 6 patrol, where Drs. Shortridge and Furling attended him, after which he was sent to his home.

Issued Woman Picked Up.

Bertie Jones, colored, was brought to the Anacostia station last evening by Officer Reegan. On Saturday last she left her home in Willow Tree alley, and yesterday morning was found wandering in a demented condition on Nichols Avenue.

A sympathetic citizen, believing the woman insane, took her to St. Elizabeth's, but she was not an escaped patient, and was turned out. The woman wandered back to Anacostia, and was found sitting on the doorstep of Mrs. Dorsey's house, on Monroe Street.

Pullman's Son to Marry.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—The engagement of George M. Pullman, Jr., the eldest son of George M. Pullman, to Miss Felicitie Oglesby, of Elkhart, Ill., is announced. Miss Oglesby is the youngest daughter of "Uncle Dick" Oglesby, the best known ex-governor of Illinois.

MISS MARTHA CUNNINGHAM.

A Young Poetess Whose Fame Is Taking Shape Steadily.

Maria Cunningham, the young poetess, whose fame is so steadily taking shape, and who has been compared, even by some of our severest critics, to Browning, has accomplishments that are not confined to the field of poetry. She has, first, what all women prize above all things, and that is genuine beauty, and she speaks French, Italian and German with fluency. She is also a harpist of exceptional power, her execution being something more for a woman who has just passed her teens. She was at school abroad for six years, in Paris, Berlin and London, and has traveled over Europe, besides spending several months in the Holy Land. All this, for a woman who has not yet gotten beyond her twenty-first mile stone, is a little unusual, even in this age of rapid development. One of Cardinal Gibbons' last acts, before embarking on his late foreign trip, was to write to Miss Cunningham a letter of praise for her recent book of poems, "The Bulfinch of La Jeunesse Dorée," published by Cushing & Co., of Boston, and charmingly illustrated by A. Palmer Cooper, in which his effusiveness was pleased to say that the work of the poetess displayed "a high order of literary merit."

Through a large part of the products of this gifted and versatile young American woman there is a vein of religious mysticism, as well as a touch of metaphysics, but here and there the religious sentiment is dropped out, as in this little poem:

Give me of thy gold, O Sunshine;
Of thy silver, give me, Moon;
And I'll take them to my sweetheart—
She will bid me enter soon.

Then it will not matter, Sunshine;
Then it will not matter, Moon;
That we have no purse between us—
Only love's sweet, priceless boon.

That Miss Cunningham's imagination has also a sublime and powerful range is impressively manifested in the sparkling verse entitled "Down," which has been highly praised:

Darkness, darkness, then a gray;
Blue light that silver glows and pales.
Stillness, silence; then a stir
Of breathing life. White trails
Of sombre clouds float to the west,
And sink within the sea to rest.

Peak on peak leaps up rose-tipped,
And slope on slope then swells with thrills
Sweet, and pipe and call of bird
And beast. Then high above the hills
The sun flares up, and shepherd's horn
Resounds and echoes—Day is born.

BLUE LAWS IN EUROPE.

Liberal Germans Prohibited From Whistling in the Fatherland.

The enforcement of the Sunday closing law in New York city has caused a great deal of talk about "blue laws," "infringement on personal liberty," &c. In reality the slight inconvenience to a portion of that city's population amounts to nothing compared to restrictions on personal liberty in some other countries. Pearson's Weekly enumerates a number of instances of such "blue laws," among them being the following: No fewer than sixty-eight persons in Berlin were recently put on trial on charge of lese majeste, their offense consisting of having spoken in an uncompromising fashion of the Emperor's "going of Argin," a musical composition about which his majesty is inordinately sensitive.

At Dresden a young soldier, who had but recently joined the colors, has been condemned to four months' close confinement in a cell for having been caught whistling in one of the streets of the Saxon capital. Whistling, indeed, seems to be a dangerous diversion in Germany, for it was not very long ago that the ball porter of a fashionable hotel in Unter den Linden, at Berlin, was brought before a magistrate and condemned to a fine, with an alternative of imprisonment, for having whistled to summon a cab for a guest at the hotel.

After all, this is only in keeping with the strict laws which prevail in that essentially music loving and music making country, Prussia. People are not allowed to play or sing in their own apartments after ten o'clock, except with the express consent of their neighbors. They cannot keep on their premises any furred or feathered animals added to nocturnal utterances of sounds that murder sleep. In the south of Austria, especially along the shores of the Adriatic, the daisy is regarded by the authorities as the emblem of disloyalty and of that great revolutionary association known as the "Italia Irredenta," which aims at the restoration to Italy of all Austria's Italian speaking provinces. The reasons why this particular flower has been adopted by the Irredentists is because its continental name is synonymous with that of Italy's still charming and popular Queen, Marguerite, and because this it is so abundant that it is within the reach of even the most poverty stricken peasant. At the present moment there are men and even women undergoing imprisonment in Trieste and elsewhere whose only offense consisted in their having worn buttonholes and corsage bouquets of daisies.

Bliss in Kansas.

Probably the proudest moment in a girl's life is when she is out of town visiting for a few days and her steady goes to see her. To have a beau follow a girl all the way from home is true joy.—Athens Globe.

ALEXANDRIA HAPPENINGS.

A merry party of the bosses of the various shops of the big naval ordnance foundry in Washington came down from Washington on the ferry steamer yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and boarding the German Yacht Club's steamer, America, sailed to Indian Head, where the day was spent in examining the naval proving ground works.

The steamer was under the command of Admiral Angus Calhoun, of the Gertrude club, and in the party were Mr. M. A. Lynch, general superintendent of the gun carriage shop, and his three assistants, Samuel Bodie, Arthur Sult and George Guttery; Mr. William J. Cochran, foreman of the foundry; Arthur Drummond, foreman of the blacksmith shop; Isaac Chase, foreman of the pattern shop; John Morgan, foreman of the construction shop; L. Riddle, of Charles Riddle & Son, Baltimore; Henry Miller, H. L. Cochran, James Morris and Edgar Thompson, of Washington; and Edward Birrell, of this city.

Mr. O. B. Hopkins, grand counselor of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of Virginia, with Mr. George W. Johnson, of Alexandria, and George S. Anderson, of Washington, went to Occoquan on Saturday night last and organized a new council of the order, to be known as Occoquan Council No. 69.

The Democrats of Fairfax county will hold district meetings to-night to choose delegates to the State senatorial convention, which meets in this city on Thursday next. The county will have twenty-two votes in the convention and Maj. J. M. Love, chairman of the county Democratic committee, says they will all be Mashback delegates. Alexandria county will choose three Mashback delegates to-morrow night.

Mr. W. S. Kimmel, a clerk in the employ of the Southern Railway Company, died at his home, No. 817 Price street, yesterday evening after a long illness of typhoid fever. Mr. Kimmel was but twenty-seven years of age and was very popular. His body will be taken to Winston, N. C., his home, for burial.

Rev. W. H. McAllister, the pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, preached his farewell sermon to his congregation yesterday. He will leave during the week for Chicago and will be transferred to the Illinois conference of his church.

ANACOSTIA NEWS.

Miss Alice Sanders, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. John Middleton, at 51 Jefferson street, has returned to her home in Pennsylvania.

A number of people gathered a crowd of people together on Nichols Avenue, in Hillsdale Saturday, by his strange antics. He jumped up and down and soon there was a large number around him. Sgt. Anderson and Policeman Hagan investigated and took him to the Anacostia police station. He was clearly demented but he was charged with vagrancy and was sent to the Fifth precinct station.

The Congress Heights Baseball team has issued a challenge to any amateur nine of the District, and requests that communications be sent Mr. Waller, its captain, addressed to Congress Heights.

Anacostia Lodge of Odd Fellows held a meeting in Masonic Hall Saturday night. Noble Grand G. W. Fisher presided. The guests were conferred on one new member.

There is trouble in the family of Rudolph Thiele, whose immense poultry farm, near Silver Hill, was thrown open to the public Tuesday night last, a largely attended barbecue being given in honor of his friend, Mr. W. Fisher, president. The night and the host was very much in his cups. It was 3 o'clock when the last load left the Thiele farm, and then began the troubles of Mrs. Thiele. Being in a disagreeable mood, Thiele is alleged to have inflicted severe punishment upon his better half, who, it is said, would have fared even worse if it had not been for Mr. Thurn, a bartender, who interfered. As a result of the trouble Mrs. Thiele complained to Sheriff Middleton, of the county, and requested his protection. It is not known what the outcome will be.

IVY CITY ITEMS.

Mr. G. A. Ellipsoid has recovered from recent illness and has resumed his duties in the Government Building. Master George Ellipsoid is also rapidly recovering from typhoid fever.

Miss Hockman has returned to her home near Bay Ridge.

Mr. Fred Stearns has resumed his duties in the Ninth precinct after a pleasant visit to the old homestead in New Hampshire.

Mrs. C. B. Ratcliffe and her daughters, Edith and Lillian, are visiting her mother in Baltimore.

Mr. John Westwood has a bid in for the brick work of one of the proposed school houses.

The regular meeting of the Citizens' Association will be held this evening.

He Was Not Flattered.

MR. DEPEW HOLDS A LEEVE

Winds Up His European Tour by Telling It to the Reporters.

STARTED LONDON TALKING

The Home Rule Interview and What It Resulted In—Englishmen Intimated That He Was an Ignoramus. New Interest in Affairs American Displayed by the Foreigners.

New York, Sept. 15.—Chauncey M. Depew arrived from Europe last night on the steamship Paris. In an interview concerning his vacation trip he had the following to say:

"We arrived at Southampton at the close of the elections in England after the smoothest of passages on a summer sea. The steamer landed at 5 in the morning. At six I went down to breakfast to find a reporter by my chair, saying in the well remembered New York way, 'Are you Mr. Chauncey Depew? Well, then, I want a column on these subjects upon which I am instructed to get your views.'"

"There were a dozen questions covering the elections, finance, industrial prospects, and the policies of parties. It was impossible not to recognize and respond to such a touch of home. The interview in whole or part appeared in all the English papers."

"In one respect the result was interesting and that the development of the American in England with social ambitions. The interview gave the Anglo-American the opportunity to recognize and respond to such a touch of home. The interview in whole or part appeared in all the English papers."

"My answer was substantially that home rule was the cornerstone of the institutions and our people are practically unanimous on that subject; that there had been no division among us as to home rule for Ireland, and we could not understand the real or manufactured fears of the adoption of the policy leading to the disruption of the British Empire."

"On the contrary, we thought the adoption of the federative principle would benefit England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales and the colonies; that we were heartily in favor of English speaking peoples leading the world and willing that the British Empire should have a first place in the affairs of Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia, but that we would neither consent to nor permit the control or occupation by an European power of the Republics of America."

"Of the six hundred members of the House of Lords, all but twenty-five are conservatives or Tories. Society is overwhelmingly the same. Americans resident in England become attached to the dominant party and many of them more extreme than its leaders. Their denunciation of home rule and views of the Irish are refreshing revelations of the influence of environment."

SCORED HIM ROUNDLY.

"They wrote letters in the papers, vigorously denouncing my statements. According to them, I was either grossly ignorant of American sentiment or a phenomenal liar. They said that, beyond the politicians and political papers controlled by fear of the Irish vote, all there is in our country, save the expression of its intelligence, its learning, its business, and its society, is opposed to home rule and in cordial sympathy with the ideas and principles of the Tory party."

"Our enlarged party, our recent collision with the British foreign office over Nicaragua and Venezuela, our increasing interest in foreign relations, and the possibility of an administration which will enforce the Monroe doctrine, have created a new and unusual interest in the affairs of the United States."

"The statements of both parties would like a sort of offensive and defensive alliance with us. They want our help in China and in Japan, and in the difficulties arising out of Russian, German, and French hostility and aggressiveness in the East, and would gladly handle all American matters into our hands in exchange for such an understanding."

OUR RAILROAD DELEGATES.

"The excitement in South Africa gold mines equals the wildest speculation in Colorado or California booming times. Both London and Paris are crazy. One of the best informed bankers in Europe told me that 100 men had pocketed in cold cash within the past year five hundred millions of dollars by the sale of the stocks or shares of these companies."

"The general verdict of the international railroad congress was that our representatives were most hospitably entertained by their British brothers, but learned nothing from Europe which would be useful in America. They have adopted our air brake, but look with distrust upon the automatic coupler."
